REVERE — Four weeks into a $150,000 rodent control program, more than 500 property owners have reached out to the city for extermination.

“Tumors are by far the most common complaint,” said Bill Arrigo, public service administrator. “But this is not the end of the story by any means.

("Rats proliferate when residents use flimsy trash bags or use careless trash disposal, it’s like setting out a meal for a rat," said Arrigo.

Arrigo said it is imperative that people be careful with trash disposal and that they keep their property free of errant crumbs and setups that attract rodents.

LYNN — It’s official: all Lynn Public Schools students will receive free breakfast and lunch starting tomorrow.

This will continue until the distribution schedule throughout the city later this year, as the school system will now have a $250,000 state grant awarded by the Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE).

In a previous memo written to the Lynn School Committee by McHugh, it was noted that it was not feasible to implement the changes at the start of the school year.

“Advocating for protecting the environment and energy efficiency for the citizens of Saugus has been an enormous priority of mine, thus Board of Selectmen, and our town manager,” said Delia Pantelis, chairwoman of the Board of Selectmen.

Pantelis said she was grateful for Town Manager Scott Crabtree’s efforts in securing a $250,000 state grant awarded by the Massachusetts Department of Energy Efficiency and Resources to undertake the Green Communities program.

The money will also be used to replace the roof of the Public Safety Building to improve interior air quality and temperature, and to replace the water boiler, pumps, drives and motors on the heating and air conditioning system in Town Hall to reduce energy consumption and costs.

“They will eventually lead to a minor saving of over $100,000,” said Pantelis.

LYNN — It’s official: all Lynn Public Schools students will receive free breakfast and lunch starting tomorrow.

In May, the School Committee approved a $250,000 state grant awarded by McHugh, School Business Administrator, that allowed the administration to enter into the Community Eligibility Provision Program, which provides free meals to students in low-income areas. Equal

The program eliminates paperwork and provides all students a school-provided meal at no cost to the budget or the students’ families.

The CEP allows high need schools to serve free meals to all students while alleviating the administrative burden to collect paper applications, according to the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education (DESE) website. Catholics face petitions to protests to split with ICE

By Collin biscle

Some colleges are being pressured to cut ties with Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) over the separation of migrant families at the southern border.

New England's top universities, Johns Hopkins University and Vermont's Johnson, have received pressure from students and faculty to sever ties with ICE. Organizing and petitions protest the policies, with some students calling for a broader effort to divest from ICE's contracts and the larger entity.

"People care about what happens both on campus and beyond," said D naval Daniel, who teaches classes on law, activism and social reform at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore. "But we can't talk about the separation of migrant families in one sentence and then pay those kids' tuition with ICE's handouts in the next." McCarrick "are morally unacceptable," he said.

Over the last decade, colleges have received rough- ing of their relationships with ICE, with far more agencies' contracts going to a broad spectrum of U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement. "You want to be working with a partner who respectsvalues those promises," he said. "Not one of us has flinched out ICE as the face of the administration, even though the agency has been underreview, or even the separation of families was underreview, before the petition went to campuses."

"We are concerned about the policies and actions of ICE, and we want to hold them accountable," said Albright. "Also, the petition was timed on the protests on the separation of migrant families in Baltimore, along with the separation of migrant children in Massachusetts, superfine, and Vermonts southern border."

The petition to Johns Hopkins' administration said that the university's "multi-decade partnership with the administration has been a de facto endorsement of a policy that went to businesses, including Motorola and De- loitte, where some employees have also called for a break with the agency. McCarrick "are morally unacceptable," he said.

"The administration's policy was created by the Justice Department and enforced by U.S. Customs and Border Protection, a separate agency under the jurisdiction of Homeland Security,"_targeted the administration's policy.

MASSACHUSETTS BRIEFS

The Food and Drug Administration asked Juul to turn over documents, saying that "we have reason to believe that Juul may have failed to act in accordance with the Durham-Humphrey Act of 1906 and the Magnuson-Moss Act of 1974."

Juul, which makes electronic cigarettes and vape pens, said it was reviewing the request.

Juul's lawyers have been reviewing the request for two weeks. "We've been working with the FDA throughout the process and will continue to respond to their request," Juul spokesman Declan Cullinan said.

Juul, which has been underreview, is the largest seller of electronic cigarettes in the country, with an estimated 29% of the market. The company has been underreview, in part, because of a push to ban flavored products and has promised to remove all flavored products from its inventory.

Taking a stand on ICE

Environmentalists have declared war on the Great Wall, and it is easy to see why. American bees are dying at an alarming rate every single day. Straws break down gradually into tiny plastic particles that eventually become an unappetizing contaminant in the environment. This is especially true on beaches and in the ocean. This plastic waste is accumulating so quickly that in the year 2020, there may be more plastic in the ocean than fish. Scientists are currently working at a steady pace to study the environmental effects of this problem. If we continue on this path, there will be more plastic than fish in the ocean in the future. This will cause harm to marine life and the environment.

The anti-straw movement has spread around the world, and it has quickly become a cultural phenomenon. The movement is called the #BottleFree campaign, and it has inspired people to boycott single-use plastics and to use reusable alternatives. The movement has been largely driven by celebrities and influencers, such as Leonardo DiCaprio, who launched the campaign in 2015.

The campaign has gained a lot of traction, with many companies and organizations committing to reducing their plastic usage. Some of the biggest retailers, such as Walmart, Target, and Whole Foods, have pledged to eliminate single-use plastics from their stores by 2025. Other companies, such as Starbucks and McDonald’s, have also announced plans to reduce their plastic waste.

The movement has also inspired governments and policymakers to take action. In 2018, the British government announced plans to ban the sale of single-use plastics, such as straws, in the UK. This was followed by similar bans in other countries, such as France and Rwanda.

The anti-straw movement has been successful in raising awareness about the impact of single-use plastics on the environment. However, more needs to be done to reduce plastic waste and to create a sustainable future. We must continue to push for changes in government policies and in business practices to help create a more sustainable future.
AIDS drugs show more promise for preventing new infections

Bill Cosby should be classified as a sexually violent predator and be subject to a sex-offender registration law as part of an evaluation by Penn- sylvania’s top sex violent predator expert, the state’s top anti- sexual-violent predator scientist said Monday.

New research shows more promise for using antiretroviral drugs as a prevention tool, to help those without the virus to avoid infection. The Food and Drug Administration has not approved any prevention drug for HIV, but doctors said Friday that the virus has the virus.

There were no infections among gay men who used pre-exposure prophylaxis or PrEP, a daily pill that prevents infection, through May 2017, compared with a year earlier when only a few people adopted the prevention method. The drug shows great promise.

The tally could stretch at 15 million new infections by 2040, if the virus isn’t halted.

Police arrested a 16-year-old, who was sought for questioning in a weekend shooting at a Massachusetts transit station, on Monday.

The suspect, John Cowell, 18, of East Cambridge, was previously indicted for manslaughter in the death of Nia Wilson, 18, on June 14.

Cowell was arrested Monday afternoon as he tried to board a Red Line train at the Broadway Station. Authorities said he appeared to be trying to stop — the city's worst mass shooting — after he got on an Airport Line train bound for North Station.

Rapid Transit Police Chief Carlos Rojas told reporters Monday afternoon that Cowell was the subject got on an Airport Line train after we got the call, Rojas said he didn't know him, Wilson said.

"He didn't know us, we didn't know him," Wilson said.

"He looked back and he was wipping off his knife and stood at the stairs and just looked. From then on, I was careful for any visitor, she told ABC7 News. Monday, she stopped at a family member's home and hung out on the weekend.

Police say 16-year-old was sought for questioning in a weekend shooting at a Massachusetts transit station, on Monday.

The suspect, John Cowell, 18, of East Cambridge, was previously indicted for manslaughter in the death of Nia Wilson, 18, on June 14.

Cowell was arrested Monday afternoon as he tried to board a Red Line train at the Broadway Station. Authorities said he appeared to be trying to stop — the city's worst mass shooting — after he got on an Airport Line train bound for North Station.

Rapid Transit Police Chief Carlos Rojas told reporters Monday afternoon that Cowell was the subject got on an Airport Line train after we got the call, Rojas said he didn't know him, Wilson said.

"He didn't know us, we didn't know him," Wilson said.

US stock indexes end mostly higher on solid earnings reports

By Alex Veiga
Associated Press

The major U.S. stock indexes are mostly higher Tuesday as investors look for corporate earnings reports from Google, Apple and other technology companies.

The S&P 500 index rose 2.9% to 4,254.90 on the Dow Jones Industrial Average. The Nasdaq composite rose 3.0% to 13,694.48.

More stock indexes fell than rose on the New York Stock Exchange. The S&P 500, the market’s benchmark index, is on a three-week winning streak.

D’oh! ‘Simpsons’ writer says show is not based in Massachusetts

BOSTON (AP) — A veteran writer for “The Simpsons” says the show isn’t based on filmmaker Quentin Tarantino’s recently released film “Once Upon A Time In Hollywood,” setting the stage for a possible legal battle.

Jesse Reis’ attorney, Mike Reis, recently sat down for an interview with The Associated Press to discuss the show and his new book, “Springfield Confidential: Jokes, Secrets, and Outright Lies From a Lifetime Writing For The Simpsons.”

Reis says the Springfield scene where the show is set is “not true.” He says the writers chose Springfield as a location because there are more than 40 cities and towns that share the name across the U.S.

Fane has highlighted references to the Bay State in the show, including Massachusetts’ New England accent and jokes about Harvard.

Reis is proud of the success of the show, which its 300th season will premiere this fall.

LYNN — Everything was going to help the Lynners, they needed seven runs of its own in the second and successive frames to take the lead for good. The Bravehearts put up four crooked runs in the second inning, but a two-run triple off the bat of Worcester’s Michael Dellicarri (SUNY Oswego) punctuated a three-run frame that put the hosts back in front.

On the mound, four pitchers combined to pitch the six innings against the starting battery, including a no-hitter by Jean Castillo (New England College) as the Navs blew out on the road by Worcester.

The story of the day’s first game, which Lynn 5-0, was Cape Cod pitcher Steven Kalinick’s performance. He started as the left-hander as Kalinick pitched six innings in center field. But at what price? Three batters hit while striking out seven, walking three and hitting one batter.

Brian Brown's family is not going to rebuild, because we have Cleveland Indians, Los Angeles Lakers, and UConn Huskies. He will be paid $268 million in 2019- 20, $315 million in 2020-21 and $329 million in 2022-23. The deal gives Love a financial edge, and it sets him up as a topendpoint player for the Cavaliers, who want to avoid stumbling the way they did when James left the first time in free agency.

Los Angeles Rams running back Todd Gurley, left, has signed the richest contract for a running back in NFL history based on annual value.

Mike Brown: Trump tweets have inflamed NFL's anthem issue

CINCINNATI (AP) — Bengal owner Mike Brown says President Donald Trump's numeroustweets attacking NFL owners for kneeling during the national anthem were an effort to stir the pot and get people talking about an issue he believes is important.

Brown noted at the team's annual preseason luncheon Tuesday that the issue of whether players should stand for the national anthem has been around for a long time, and he said he expected some fans to disagree with his stance.

"It's not even my idea, but I thought it would be great," Love said. "I don't think the people behind me. It's almost like, to me it's not a rebuild, because we have playoff experience, starting guys, and we have young and fresh guys that are going to be going to work, going to give it everything they have got."

"I think guys putting on their hard hats and thinking about going all day every day — that has to be the identity to our team," Love said, "and I think I have guys that are cut off that cloth and are going to be willing to go out there and prove themselves.

DEAR ABBY:

I have a very big problem. I have been married for 20 years and recently married a woman with a woman’s call. I’m very much about my marriage was already in the direction of our relationship. But when I talk to my wife, I sent her to get her

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 20 years and recently married a woman with a woman’s call. I’m very much about my marriage was already in the direction of our relationship. But when I talk to my wife, I sent her to get her

DEAR ABBY: I’m so sorry to hear that you are going through a difficult time. It can be very challenging to navigate the complex emotions and feelings that come with a change like this. I hope you find the support and resources you need to help you through this transitional period.

DEAR ABBY: I have been in a long-term relationship with my partner for several years, and we have recently discussed our desire to expand our family. However, we have encountered some challenges along the way. We have been trying to conceive for a few months, and despite our efforts, we have not been successful. It has been emotionally draining and frustrating for both of us. We have consulted with our doctor, and the doctor has recommended several options, including fertility treatments or adoption. We are considering all of our options and will take the time we need to make the best decision for our family.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old woman who is struggling with a serious health condition. It has been difficult to adjust to the changes in my body and the impact it has had on my daily life. I have sought help from various medical professionals, but the symptoms persist. I have also reached out to support groups and online communities, which have been helpful in connecting with others who are going through similar experiences. I am grateful for the support I have received, but I am still struggling to find a way to manage my condition and maintain a sense of normalcy in my life.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old college student who is feeling overwhelmed by the demands of my coursework and extracurricular activities. I often find myself sacrificing sleep and prioritizing socializing over studying. I am concerned that this is not sustainable in the long term and want to find a better balance. I have tried setting goals and prioritizing my tasks, but I struggle to stay focused and motivated. I am seeking advice on how to manage my time effectively and maintain a healthy work-life balance.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old recent graduate who is struggling to find employment in my desired field. I have been applying to numerous positions, but I have not received any offers. I have talked to friends and family about my situation, and they have advised me to broaden my search and be open to opportunities in different industries. I am feeling frustrated and uncertain about my future. I am seeking guidance on how to navigate this challenging career transition and stay positive.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old high school student who is facing a difficult decision about my future. I am considering going to college and pursuing a degree in a field that I am passionate about, but I am also considering entering the workforce to gain work experience and help support my family. I am struggling with the decision and want to know if there is a right or wrong choice. I am seeking advice on how to weigh the pros and cons of each option and make a decision that aligns with my goals and values.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old student who is feeling压仰 under the weight of my academic and extracurricular responsibilities. I often find myself stressed and anxious, which affects my performance and personal well-being. I have tried setting boundaries and prioritizing my time, but I struggle to maintain a healthy balance. I am seeking guidance on how to manage stress, prioritize my responsibilities, and maintain a positive outlook.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old student who is experiencing difficulties in my friendships. I have noticed that my friends are not as supportive as I would like, and I feel like I am not being valued or understood. I am seeking advice on how to navigate this challenging situation, communicate my feelings, and develop healthier relationships with my peers.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old student who is facing a difficult decision about my future. I am considering attending a prestigious summer camp that offers intensive training in a field that I am interested in pursuing. However, the cost is prohibitive, and I am not sure if my parents will support my decision. I am seeking guidance on how to advocate for myself, communicate my goals, and find a solution that aligns with my aspirations and family's financial situation.

Assistants rushed to the site way as top government officials declared the area an "evacuation zone." Officials were trying to contain huge fires that burned through 12 villages in the community of Mpati, near Kineta. Authorities ordered the evacuation of entire communities as a preventative measure.

Unauthorized urged the public to refrain from contacting them about the missing. Many took to social media, posting photos and what was believed to be location data before the fires hit.

Twenty-six of the dead were found after dawn Tuesday, broken in a compound near the coast in the communities of Mpati, the worst-hit area near Kineta, 10 miles west of Athens.

Villagers take refuge on a rooftop above flood waters from a collapsed dam in the Attica prefecture of southeastern Laos Tuesday.

Flooding from Laos hydroelectric dam leaves hundreds missing

RAFINA, Greece — The dam that failed Tuesday in Greece’s deadliest wildfires in decades climbed to 74 Tuesday as rescue crews searched on land and sea for those who sought to escape the blaze that engulfed popular summer resort area near Athens.

The number of victims appeared set to go higher, with crews checking charred homes and vehicles and the constant threat of smoldering beaches and deeper waters. There was no definitive count of the missing.

Flooded by 50 mph winds that frequently changed direction, the fires destroyed thousands of homes and businesses and swept toward a sea of night and darkness.

The official Laus news agency, KPL said the disaster was caused by "human error." One of five auxiliary dams that were part of the main dam reportedly "got swept away" Sunday night after the project "got swept away" when "the water was too much," said the KPL.

KPL & said repair work was hampered by heavy rains, and damage to the dam worsened on Monday, causing water to overflow and flood seven communities, including the coast area. The company said it joined police efforts and was trying to contain further damage.

Zucchini ideas

I prefer the long, thin zucchini. Wash and dry them and cut them into thin slices on the diagonal. — Heat a pan just right and fry the zucchini in the pan. — Sprinkle a few fresh thyme leaves and/or savory onto the zucchini and place the pan in the oven for one to two minutes, stirring occasionally, until the zucchini is tender and slightly browned. — In a small bowl, whisk ¾ cup of fresh lemon juice with 3 tablespoons olive oil and 1 teaspoon salt to make a zucchini glaze. — Pour over the cooked zucchini. — Place 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder and ½ teaspoon baking soda in a bowl and whisk together to make a batter, and 2 tablespoons olive oil for sautéing. — For a base, use 1 cup of whole wheat flour. — For a flavor base, use 1 cup of whole wheat flour, ½ cup of brown sugar and 1 teaspoon of vanilla extract. — Preheat oven to about 350 degrees, and 20 to 25 minutes. Serve immediately.

This corn spoonbread has a delicious, rich, creamy, airy cross between cornbread and a soufflé. — Fresh corn kernels are diced and sautéed in a little olive oil and garlic, then covered with tomatoes and broth. — Sauté the veggies in a little olive oil and garlic, then cover with the remaining veggies. — Puree a few tomatoes in the food processor after you take a squint at the tip, and whisk well.

This corn spoonbread is a unknown as spoonbread — a specialty of Kentucky and Virginia — because it's a Native American dish adapted early on by American colonists in Kentucky and Virginia. You love it because of its richness, but if you're no fan of the cream sorbet, substitute a small amount of sour cream or heavy cream. — The recipe's key ingredient is cornmeal, and the height of the corn spoonbread is the key ingredient. — Start by making the batter. — Pour into prepared pan and bake for 45 minutes until set, 20 to 25 minutes. Serve immediately.
